

WINTER POEM

Winter to me is... Does this have a capital letter?

Opening my christmas, Hanukkah, birthday presents, → lovely use of a list.

Cuddling around the hot flaming leaves of the sun,

Snoring under the thick duvet when the eye of the day closes,

(sp) Watching the maigal little white diamonds falling from the white glittering sky, Spotting snow white owls gliding gracefully, → alliteration - hooray!

[and ^{at} the very last, I say "aww no!" when the school comes!]

↳ This last line has a very different tone - is this deliberate?

★ Lovely metaphors used throughout the poem.

★ I love the way you have started every line with a continuous verb.

★ I wonder if you could add another line or two using alliteration or rhyme?
